THE NEXT CAMPAIGN.

The next State Democratic convention will indorse in its entirety the Chicago platform of 1896. It will adopt a platform on State issues that will satisfy every white man in North Carolina who has voted the Democratic ticket in any election during the past five years, and who honestly wishes a return to decent government. It will ratify the nominations for Superior Court Judges made by the conventions of the several Districts in which terms of the Judges expire, and these will be the only candidates nominated and voted for in the State at large. There will be nothing about "fusion" in the platform. It will include a strong and direct appeal to the white manhood of North Carolina, and a cordial invitation to those who have strayed from the fold to come back to the grand old Democratic party and join hands with it in a supreme effort to rescue our State from misrule and corruption. This is the outlook as viewed by the STAR.

Elizabeth Englehardt, of New York aged 71, wants a divorce from her spouse, Christen, also aged 71, to whom she has been married forty-eight years. They have a family of ten children, and are worth $100,000, which they made in the bakery business. They got along pretty well until her young man contracted the habit of going fishing, and then the stories he told shook her confidence in him.

Mr. Butler's Caucasian thinks Governor Russell made a mistake in accepting those railroad passes. It took the Cauc. a good while to elaborate this think. Perhaps the mistake the Governor made was in not equipping himself with an organ, and grabbing the passes as an editor. If he had consulted with Marion Butler he might have got some pointers.

In a murder case at Dover, N. H., the other day, one of the jurors summoned, in reply to the usual questions, said he had formed an opinion as to the guilt of the accused and also had conscientious scruples about capital punishment, but could still give a verdict according to the law and testimony. And they took him. Why not?

At the Opera House.

All the sports were out in full bloom last night to witness the pictures of the great fistic contest which took place at Carson City March 17th, between the heavyweights Corbett and Fitzsimmons, as produced by the Veriscope Company. Those who were unable to be at the ring-side during this great battle can get a good idea of the two men, as well as what a prize-ring fight is. It is simply wonderful to watch every movement of the men, also their seconds, time-keepers and referee. It is useless to go into detail of the fight, as every one is well aware of the fact as to how it terminated and the pictures are true to life. So those who missed the opportunity last night of seeing these pictures should avail themselves of the opportunity afforded to-night.

TRUCK AND FRUIT GROWERS.

Proceedings of the Semi-Annual Convention of the Eastern Carolina Association.

The Eastern Carolina Truck and Fruit Growers' Association met in semi-annual Convention at the county court house yesterday afternoon at 8 p. m.

Mr. W. L. Hill, of Warsaw, President of the Association, called the meeting to order, and the Secretary, Mr. D. H. Harnley, of Chadbourn, was at his post.

Delegates were enrolled from local Association, at Teachey's, Warsaw, Chadbourn, Faison, Mount Olive, Burgaw, Rocky Point, Rose Hill and Wilmington.

The minutes of the last meeting, held June 23nd, of this year, were read and approved.

Mr. C. M. Steinmetz, of Rose Hill, secretary of the executive committee, made a verbal report showing the financial condition of the Association and naming the local Associations indebted to the general body.

Mr. J. A. Brown, of Chadbourn, chairman of the Executive Committee, made his report. He stated that the efforts of the committee had been mainly directed to the devising of means for liquidating the indebtedness of the Association, believing that before the Association could be of the highest service to the members it was necessary for it to pay every dollar that it owed. He explained that the committee had under consideration several plans for the advancement of the Association's objects, but at present felt that it was not wise to divulge them. He recommended that every member of the Association who failed to pay up his indebtedness should be debarred from enjoying the benefits of the Association. Mr. Brown also stated that the committee felt satisfied that their plans for the further reduction of the expense of marketing the crop would be successfully consummated. The report of the Executive Committee was adopted, on motion of Dr. E. Porter, of Rocky Point.

On motion of Mr. G. Z. French, of the New Hanover Association, the Executive Committee was invested with full powers to make all arrangements about transportation and kindred matters.

Mr. J. A. Westbrook, of Mount Olive, for the committee appointed to consult the railroad authorities concerning additional shipping facilities at Teachey's and Wallace, reported that he had the promise of all necessary improvements.

The Committee on Finances had no report and this fact argued well for the methods of the Association, as it is somewhat remarkable that there should be no complaints whatever from any member of so large a body.

Under the head of unfinished business, Mr. J. A. Brown suggested the necessity that the branch organizations take vigorous action to prevent delinquent members from holding their membership. The question was discussed freely, some of those who participated being Dr. E. Porter, Messrs. G. Z. French, A. H. Paddison, J. S. Westbrook and H. J. Faison. It was finally decided to request the local associations to reduce their membership to those who have paid their dues.

The secretary read some extracts from his report in the Farmers' and Planters' Journal, showing such of the expenses of the association as had been met and such as were still to be settled. Here a warm discussion began over the unwillingness of the Mount Olive Association to pay the whole of its assessment. The delegates from that association contended that the assessment had been based on the number of crates of berries shipped from Mount Olive, when the fact was that not more than one-fourth of the berries shipped from Mount Olive was grown by members of the association.

At this point Messrs. J. A. Brown and D. H. Harnley being compelled to leave, Mr. J. Henry Moore, of Burgaw, took the secretary's chair.

On motion the Mt. Olive Association was referred to the Executive Committee for a settlement of the matter in controversy, with the understanding that if it should appear that the Association was assessed too high the committee should have the power to cover the consequent shortage by readjusting the assessments of all the associations.

The Association then adjourned.

Restaurant Raided by Thieves.

The restaurant of Mr. J. C. Carterett, in the western end of Front street market, was broken into late Monday night or early yesterday morning by a thief or thieves and robbed of a large quantity of coffee and sugar and about a gallon of oysters, but the appearance of a cable in the restaurant gave evidence that the latter named article had been consumed before the intruder or intruders had taken their departure. The robbery was discovered by Mr. Carterett, the proprietor. An entrance to the restaurant was effected by breaking open a door leading from the restaurant to an alley.

After Forty Years.

Sunday afternoon Capt. A. D. Brown welcomed to Wilmington on a short visit Capt. William Anderson, of the British steamship Willowdene, now in port at Charleston. It had been forty years since the two had seen each other before and—singular coincidence—the last time they met was on a Sunday afternoon. Capt. Anderson left for Charleston last evening.

AUDIT AND FINANCE.

Resolutions Adopted by the Board Concerning the Paid Fire Department —The Artesian Well Project— City Finances.

The Board of Audit and Finance met in regular semi-monthly session yesterday afternoon. Present, Messrs. W. H. Chadbourn (chairman), H. C. McQueen, C. W. Yates, J. H. Webber and H. A. DeCover.

The committee appointed to consider the advisability of the city establishing artesian wells reported progress, and they requested that the Mayor and Alderman Keith serve with them in the further consideration of the matter.

Mr. B. F. Keith, member of the Board of Aldermen, urged upon the committee and the Board the necessity of having an artesian well drilled, so that people who could not afford to buy pure water to drink might obtain it free. He said that if the Clarendon Water Works Company obtained pure, fresh water from the artesian well that the company is now having drilled at their station at Hilton, that eighty five per cent. of the population of Wilmington would be unable to obtain it, as they could not afford to buy it; that ten per cent. of the deaths in the city were caused from drinking bad water, and that the funeral expenses of this ten per cent. would pay for the drilling of two artesian wells. Mr. Keith further said that this question of the city having an artesian well drilled was one of the most important that had ever come before the Board.

A communication was received from the Board of Aldermen transmitting action had by that body, as follows:

1st. The sum of $30 00 was ordered paid to the "League of American Municipalities" to procure membership for the city in same. On motion, the action of the Board of Aldermen was approved.

2nd. In reference to action taken by the Board of Aldermen as to a paid fire department, the following was adopted by the Board of Audit and Finance:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Board that a paid fire department is desirable in place of the volunteer department; provided, that its cost shall not exceed $30,000 per annum for the present fiscal year, as the tax rate was reduced to 1½ per cent., not anticipating any increase of expenditures in this department; and provided, also, that the proposed paid fire department shall be efficient and such as shall be approved by the local Board of Underwriters; provided, also, that the local Board of Underwriters shall agree that the rates of insurance will be decreased at least 15 cents per $100 in the business district in case a paid department as above is established.

Resolved, also, That the firemen shall be appointed solely on account of their fitness for service.

The clerk submitted a statement of the examination of the books of the treasurer and tax collector for the month of October, showing cash on hand October 1, $8,639.13; receipts for month of October, $60,800.14; total, $69,439.27; disbursements for month of October, $56,473 88; balance to November account, $12,956.89.

The Board adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

REV. JOSEPH N. STARR

Accepts the Call to the Rectorship of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and Will Conduct Services There Next Sunday.

Last week (as told in the STAR) the vestry of St. Paul's Episcopal church, of this city, tendered to Rev. Joseph N. Starr, of Fayetteville, the rectorship of that church, which since May last has been vacant, caused by the resignation of Rev. F. N. Skinner, now rector of St. Paul's church, Clinton. Yesterday Dr. W. D. McMillan, senior warden of the vestry of St. Paul's church, received a letter of acceptance from Rev. Mr. Starr. Upon the selection, by the vestry, of Rev. Joseph N. Starr the congregation of St. Paul's Church is very much pleased, as well they may be, for the choice is an admirable one, as the new rector is one of great promise, and although young possesses attainments as a scholar of one of more mature years, while as a minister of the Gospel he possesses both eloquence and power.

Rev. Jos. N. Starr is a son of Col. Jos. B. Starr, of Fayetteville, and is a nephew of Capt. H. H. Smith, city editor of the STAR. He is a native of Fayetteville, and in 1895 graduated with the highest honors from the New York Theological Seminary. He will enter upon his new duties Sunday, and will conduct the morning services at St. Paul's.

Arnold-Welles Company.

J. F. Arnold, representing the "Arnold-Welles Players," is in this city completing arrangements for the appearance of his company at the Opera House all next week, commencing Monday. Mr. Arnold has been associated in the past with such well-know attractions as "Little Lord Fontleroy," the late Frank Mayo, "Dr. Bill," and Maude Granger, and his name connected with any company is a guarantee of its merit. The press speak in praise of this attraction, and an entire new repertorie of successful plays and up to date specialtis are promised.

Purvis, the negro tramp who brutally murdered, by shooting, Mr. James Blackwell, flagman in the employ of the Atlantic Coast Line, will pay the penalty of his crime on the gallows in the Harnett county jail at Lillington. Purvis' counsel have made many efforts to have his sentence commuted, but this Gov. Russell refused to do.

Fresh arrival to-day—300 baskets grapes, at same old price, 15c or two baskets for 25c. These prices will hold good as long as the New York market will permit, and will have a fresh arrival of 100 baskets daily. Every basket warranted. †

GEORGE JOHNSON'S CASE.

The Negro Ravisher Not Likely to Hang Thanksgiving Day—Commutation of His Sentence Probable.

It is not very probable that Geo. Johnson, colored, now in jail under sentence of death for feloniously assaulting Bertha Brewington, colored, will pay the death penalty of his crime upon the gallows; if crime it be, and of that there is serious doubt. Johnson was convicted at the last term of the Criminal Court, and the evidence there presented certainly warranted a conviction; but there is evidence now—and it was then in existence but not developed in the trial in the Criminal Court—that would, no doubt, have caused a different verdict, even if Johnson had been proven to be a scoundrel of the blackest type. It is now stated, and upon good authority, that Bertha Brewington, whom it is alleged Johnson assaulted, is a woman of bad character and well known as such in the community in which she lives, near Clinton, Sampson county. The evidence given in the preliminary trial before Justice Bunting by an expert witness was contradictory of an important statement made by the Brewington woman upon the witness stand, but this expert witness was not introduced in the trial of the case in the Criminal Court; and it has also come to light that a certain reputable gentleman of this city, on the day that the alleged assault took place, while out driving with a horse and buggy on the road between this city and Meares' Bluff, near which road the alleged crime was committed, came upon Johnson and the Brewington woman walking, and a little incident that there occurred goes to prove the innocence of Johnson of this crime.

Actuated by no idea to thwart the ends of justice, but only by the thought that Johnson is innocent of the crime he stands convicted of, and of the sentiment of a number of our citizens, Deputy Sheriff W. W. King made up a petition some weeks ago (as told in the STAR) asking Gov. Russell to commute the sentence of Johnson from the death penalty to life imprisonment in the State prison. Yesterday the petition, which contains a long list of names, among which are members of the bar, was mailed to Gov. Russell. A letter received from Solicitor M. C. Richardson states that he (Richardson) and lawyer Geo. H. White, colored, who prosecuted Johnson, and Judge Thos. H. Sutton, who passed the death sentence, have all three petitioned Gov. Russell to commute Johnson's sentence. So in view of these strong petitions and the evidence now in hand bearing upon Johnson's innocence, there is no doubt that the gallows will be cheated, and rightly so, of an innocent victim.

THE MAYORALTY MUDDLE.

The Wright Board of Aldermen and How It Was Constituted.

By the decision of the Supreme Court, (fully detailed in another column,) in what has become well known as the "city muddle" case, Mayor S. P. Wright and the Board of Aldermen now in power, and who have been in power since last March, are declared to be the legal and constituted Mayor and Board of Aldermen of Wilmington. The Board came into power under an act of the recent Legislature, providing for the election of one alderman from each of the five wards in the city, and for the appointment of five aldermen by the Governor of the State, making the Board to consist of ten members. Under this act, an election was held on the 25th of last March, and J. J. Walker (Republican), colored, was elected from the First ward; Wm. E. Springer (Democrat) from the Second ward; Owen Fennell (Democrat) from the Third ward; Walter E. Yopp (Democrat) from the Fourth ward, and Elijah M. Green (Republican), colored, from the Fifth ward. Governor Russell made the following appointments, viz: Silas P. Wright (Republican) from the First ward; Jno. G. Norwood (Republican) colored, from the Second ward; B. F. Keith, from the Third ward; A. J. Hewlett (Republican) from the Fourth ward, and D. J. Benson (Republican) from the Fifth ward. The day after the election this Board of Aldermen, excepting Aldermen Springer, Fennell and Yopp, (all Democrats) held a meeting and elected Alderman S. P. Wright Mayor, and in his stead as an Alderman elected H. C. Twining (Republican.) The three Democratic members of the Board refused to meet with this Board, claiming that the act of the Legislature so far as it empowered the Governor to appoint five Aldermen was unconstitutional, and the five men who held positions as Aldermen under such an appointment did not do so legally.

At the regular meeting of the Board held last month the office of Alderman held by Mr. Owen Fennell, of the Third ward, was declared vacant, and C. D. Morrell (Republican) was elected to fill the alleged vacancy.

The claims of the various other individuals as mayor and members of the Board of Aldermen are too well-known and have been stated too many times in the STAR to need reiteration.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meetings of the W. & W., W. C. & A. and W. & N. Railroad Companies will be held at the Atlantic Coast Line offices between the hours of 12 m. and 1 p. m. to-day. Messrs. H. MAYORALTY QUESTION.

MAYOR WRIGHT AND HIS ALDERMEN DECLARED THE LEGAL BOARD.

Supreme Court Decision Rendered by Chief Justice Faircloth—No Dissenting Opinion.

[Special Star Telegram.]

RALEIGH, N. C., November 16.—The decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Harriss and other versus the Wright Board of Aldermen of the city of Wilmington was handed down to-day.

The decision was rendered by Chief Justice Faircloth; none of the associate justices dissenting. The three cases, Harriss versus Wright and others, were consolidated by consent and tried as one. Only one point was involved in the case, that is the question of the constitutionality of the act of the Legislature. Article 7, Section 14, of the Constitution of the State of North Carolina, gives the General Assembly the right to regulate and change the laws of cities and towns.

In concluding the opinion Justice Faircloth says: "We are then led to conclude upon the language of section 14, and upon authority of some of the best text writers, and upon the recognition of the principle we are announcing by this Court, that the Act of 1897, chapter 150, is constitutional and valid." Neill vs. Williams and others.

"Much of the argument submitted referred to a law prior to article 7, section 14, of the Constitution. The question of the power of the Legislature to delegate its authority to the Governor cannot be disputed in North Carolina. The Legislature could not practically discharge its duties without agencies. Our opinion is that defendant Wright and his aldermen are the rightful owners of the offices now occupied by them."

BOLD ROBBERY.

Messrs. W. J. Penny & Co.'s Store Entered by Thieves Last Night—Two Watches and Others Articles Stolen.

Messrs. W. J. Penny & Co.'s clothing store, corner Water and Market streets, was robbed in a bold manner early this morning.

About 12 45 o'clock Policeman Lockamy passed by the store and everything at that time was all right, but when Policeman Bell, colored, passed the store at 1.30 o'clock he discovered that the upper and lower sashes of a window in the store, fronting on Market street, were out, and the sahess, with the window panes unbroken, were on the sidewalk, leaning against the side of the building. Policeman Bell rapped for assistance, and, after policemen Kuhl, Lockamy and Sharp (colored) arrived, searched the store thoroughly, but didn't find the thief or thieves, who had so boldly entered the store.

Mr. Penny, the proprietor of the store, was sent for. He reached the place about 3.30 o'clock, and upon investigation found that several suits of clothes, two watches and other articles of value had been stolen.

THE NAVAL RESERVES

To Have Competent Instructors and Inspectors from the Navy.

A Washington dispatch to the Baltimore Sun gives the following interesting information:

Naval militia organizations are to have competent instructors and inspectors detailed from the regular navy, whose duties will be to assist the organizations in perfecting its men in the work and duties that may be expected of them in time of war. Many of the State Reserves battalions are now officered by men graduated from Annapolis, who are both competent and energetic in advancing the efficiency of the organizations, but it is believed that a regular inspection system and instruction in certain branches by officers connected with the navy will materially add to the interest of the men. An order will soon be issued by Secretary Long in which he will announce the details. An officer from the Norfolk navy yard will have the North Carolina men of the Wilmington battalion.

The Kinston, N. C., Elizabeth City and Norfolk organizations will be under the same officer.

[The North Carolina battalion is composed of the Wilmington, Newbern, Kinston and Elizabeth City divisions, and to these will soon be added the Southport division, which is now organizing.—EDITOR STAR.]

FEELING THE PINCH.

The prosperity concerning which we have heard so much lately from Republican organs doesn't seem to have rolled towards New England, at least it hasn't struck the cotton mills of that section. They seem to be in a bad way if we may judge from the following editorial in the Boston Commercial Bulletin:

"The long predicted has come. There is stress and storm in American cotton mills. Too much machinery has been installed. Too many mills have been built. Massachusetts has led the way on reducing hours of labor and suffers from her liberality.

"Only one State in the Union has shorter hours of factory labor than Massachusetts. The hours in New Jersey are but 55 a week. As New Jersey textiles are silk and wool, not cotton, the short hours are not so keenly felt as that branch of industry where a fraction of a cent a yard means dividends or bankruptcy, and where the employes are most largely minors and women.

"The Southern States have no restriction on their factory labor worth mentioning, no restrictions that are rigidly enforced. In Georgia and South Carolina the working day in factories is nominally limited to 66 hours. In Massachusetts it is 58 hours.

"The effect of this difference on product is tremendous. A Rhode Island mill of two thousand looms, running 60 hours a week, can produce twenty thousand yards a week or a million yards a year more print cloth than the same mill in Massachusetts running 58 hours a week.

"The York and Everett mills used to run on the same goods and under the same management. The Maine mill paid dividends, but when the time of stress came the Massachusetts mill was forced into reorganization.

"Southern newspapers, notably a Baltimore contemporary, openly exult at the letters cast in the interests of labor about the Massachusetts mills and boast that the hard terms to labor and liberal terms to capital in the Southern States are unalterable and that they will shortly wreck Massachusetts competition.

"It is unpleasant to read the following frank statements of the Fall River manufacturers in the Fall River News, explaining why they cannot reduce production, and must reduce wages:

"Overproduction is not Fall River's chief menace. It has to contend with lower cost of production. Shutting down will not help the mills here out of this difficulty. Fall River has lost its control of the market for goods of the sorts made here. Where formerly the great bulk of cotton goods of the print cloth grades and grades in similar lines were made here, now over half of this production comes from outside, and not only outside of Fall River but outside of Massachusetts. Fall River or Massachusetts cannot control the market, and a shut-down of the mills here can be almost entirely offset by mills outside the State running overtime, something that in many localities they are free to do.

"Massachusetts mills suffer very serious competition from lower cost of production in mills in a State as near neighbor as Rhode Island. The loss of the two hours a week made necessary by the 58-hour law puts Massachusetts mills off an equal footing with Rhode Island mills. This is a difficulty that the Massachusetts manufacturers cannot overcome. The 58 hour provision is a law, and there is no expectation that it can be repealed.

"The remedy of entering upon an equal footing with outside competitors in running time, and cutting down the cost of production in that way being closed to the manufacturers here, they have no other means open for reducing the cost of production than to cut down on the cost of labor."

"It is not unlikely that with reduction of wages there must also be a reduction of salaries.

"Change of product may avert the evil day, but the only possible permanent remedy for this sort of thing lies in the hands of the labor unions, or in the possibility of a national regulation of the hours of labor."

There are several noteworthy points in this, one of which calls attention to the advantage some mills outside of Massachusetts, notably mills in the South, have over the Massachusetts mills in the longer hours of labor, which is unquestionably a great advantage. When, a couple years ago, the Massachusetts mill men were laboring to prevent any more legislation restricting the hours of labor they laid particular stress on the fact that Southern mills, against which they were now compelled to compete, were not handicapped by any restrictive legislation of that kind but were free to work as many hours as they and their employes agreed upon, and the result was that the Southern mills got from six to eight and sometimes more hours labor in a week than the Massachusetts mills did, and got the labor for less money; giving them a double advantage to be added to be added to a number of other advantages. But they have no hope of any modification of the laws regulating labor, for once having taken a concessionary step like that it is not easy to retrace it for there is politics in it and the politician does not think it healthy to come into collision with the trades unions where they are well organized.

But they have no hope of easing up the situation by restricting production for they have too many competitors who would take advantage of that and increase their production if the Massachusetts mills were to cut theirs down, which they could easily do and take the chances on overstocking the market, because of the less cost of production. New England hasn't a practical monopoly of the business now, as she once had, and therefore cannot control it as she once did.

There are only two suggestions as to a possible way out of distress, neither of which would be thought of, much less spoken, if the present distress was not great and the prospective still greater. One of these is the usual method resorted to when the profits of employers are not large enough or when their necessities compel it, that is a reduction of the wages of their employes. This is the plan the English cotton spinners have resorted to to enable them to meet the competition by which they are now confronted. If the New England mill men are really forced to this then they confess themselves in a pretty ugly predicament.

The other is national legislation to regulate the hours of labor, but it will be a long time before they succeed in getting that kind of paternalism through Congress, because there are too many conflicting interests represented there, and it would be recognized as a movement in the interest of industries of a particular section, which in asking for it would confess its inability to compete with other sections. Such a national law could not be passed to apply to cotton manufactories only, but would have to apply to all industries, including farm, mine, manufactory, shop and store. It could not discriminate, for there would be no plausible reason for discriminating, and therefore there is little likelihood of any legislation of that kind going through Congress in the near or remote future.

As the case stands, then, the only hope of the Massachusetts mills is in reducing the wages of their employes, and then there will be trouble with strikes and lockouts by which the mill men would probably lose as much or more than they would save by a reduction of wages. If this be the only hope of the Massachusetts mill men then they must have been brought to extremes and the margin for profit been made very small indeed, and the inducement to build more mills or add to the looms and spindles in that State be exceedingly small.

Taking it for granted that the picture drawn by our Boston contemporary is a true one, and it is borne out by facts and testimony from other sources, including the mill men themselves, it is evident that the day of New England's ascendancy as a power in the industry of cotton manufacturing is passing, if it hasn't already passed, and that henceforth it is to be a struggle not so much for supremacy as for existence. When New England was laboring so zealously and so fanatically to knock the props from under slavery in the South she was unconsciously knocking the props from under one of the industries that made most of her wealth. The time is coming, and that not far distant, when the sceptre in that industry will pass to the South.

MINOR MENTION.

The gold men of this country are bending all their energies to have the greenbacks withdrawn and destroyed. One of the arguments they put forward is that notwithstanding the number of greenbacks redeemed they are re-issued and stand as a debt against the Government as if they had never been "redeemed." Mr. Cleveland has said so, Mr. Carlisle has said so, and scores of other gold advocates, echoing them, have said so, but in saying so they say something that there isn't a particle of foundation for. The following extract, as a sample, is taken from the New York Post (English gold organ published in New York):

"Let us see what it is that the Government saves. It has, say, $500,000,000 of legal tender notes outstanding. In order to redeem them on demand it has been compelled to issue $350,000,000 of 4 per cent. bonds, in addition to $100,000,000 issued in 1878, for the greenback-redemption fund."

Commenting upon this, the New York Sun (another gold organ, but not in favor of making war on the greenbacks) says:

"This is a falsehood which, we thought, had been sufficiently exposed long ago. The $350 000 000 and more of bonds issued in 1895 and 1896, ostensibly for the redemption of legal tender notes, were notoriously issued to supply deficiencies in the revenue. If they were not, the notes redeemed should now be in the Treasury, whereas most of them have been paid out again for Government expenses, and therefore were not really redeemed at all."

The greenbacks taken in at the Treasury for which gold is exchanged and re-issued are, as the Sun says, not redeemed at all but simply exchanged for gold and when reissued they go out as the equivalent of so much gold and discharge as much Government indebtedness as that much gold would do. If the Government had not these greenbacks to pay out it would have to pay some other kind of money and if it didn't have it it would have to borrow just as it did when Secretary Carlisle borrowed his $250,000,000 ostensibly to keep up the gold reserve but really to help meet deficiencies and enable the Government to meet its current expenses. The only difference is that they pay interest on the gold they borrow to keep up the gold reserve, which they need not do if they would exercise the option vested in the Treasury and redeem greenbacks in "coin."

If the gentlemen who are running the so called "National Democratic" party have not discovered by this time that they are playing a ridiculous farce, they must be very dull of comprehension. With the two trials they have had to show their strength they surely ought to be satisfied, for as poor a showing as they made in the Presidential election they made a still poorer in the recent elections, where they had tickets in the field. Take the State of Ohio, for instance, as an illustration. There the Democratic ticket, or the Bryan ticket as they called it, got 401,715 votes and the so called National Democratic ticket got 1,661, only a little more than one-fourth as many as the ticket headed by crank Coxey got, for that received 6,245. The only ticket that the National Democrats led was the Negro Protective, which received 476. If there be any satisfaction in not being absolutely at the tail end, they are entitled to that, for which they are indebted to the negroes who put a ticket in the field. And this is after another year of the "campaign of education" by means of "sound money" literature and circulating missionaries like Bynum, who have been orating around the country and representing the gold sentiment as growing wherever they went. With the experience they have had and the ridiculous outcome of their planning and efforts it is about time they give it up, and quit playing to be laughed at.

* * *

Mr. Edwin F. Atkins, a merchant in Boston, expresses the opinion that it would be a bad thing for this country instead of a good thing if it raised all its own sugar and saved the $100,000,000 or $150,000,000 a year now paid to other countries for sugar imported. If we quit buying their sugar, he says, they will not have money to buy our wheat and other stuffs, and will have to raise these themselves, so that while we are supplying ourselves with sugar and saving the money we spend for it we would be cutting off the markets for our wheat, &c. But this is not all, for we now get from sugar imported about $50,000,000 of revenue which the Government would lose if we raised our own sugar. We wouldn't like to come into collision with a Boston man, but we can't help thinking that Mr. Atkins, although he may be a level headed merchant, is a crank in this, for carrying his reasoning out we should stop our home manufactories and cease making anything that the Europeans or other foreigners could make for us, so that we would have to buy these things from them and supply them with the money to buy something they needed from us. As for the revenue the Government would lose doesn't that come out of the people anyway, and what difference would it make in the end whether they paid it in duties on sugar or on something else? In this case what the Government lost on sugar the people would save on sugar, and after awhile they would be exporting sugar to countries that can't make it, just as they have been exporting wheat to countries that can't grow enough of it.

—— The Russian Government has intimated to the Sultan that it might be more appropriate to apply the Greek indemnity to Russia's unpaid bill of $9,500,000 due on account of the Russo-Turkish war than to expend the same in the purchase of armaments as proposed by the Padishah. This gentle reminder would appear to indicate that the relations between the Czar and the Sultan have become somewhat strained; it also indicates that very little of the money to be extracted from Greece will find its way to the depleted coffers of Abdul Hamid.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

SIGNS CARRIED BY MEN.

Some of the More Familiar Among Them and Some of the Curiosities.

The walking sandwich, the man between two billboards slung around the neck and hanging, one in front, the other behind, is not seen so much as he was. He was the most picturesque of all the walking sign carriers, and he was at one time the most commonly seen. His decline is doubtless due to a belief that an elevated sign, one carried above the head line, is of greater utility. The sandwich man was striking when you met him, but in a crowd you might miss him altogether; the elevated sign, carried above the heads of the people, is expected to be seen by all, and in one form and another it is now the sign most commonly carried.

There are, however, still some signs besides sandwich boards that are carried below the head line. Of these the most familiar is the coat sign, a coat with a sign painted upon it, worn by men who may perhaps remain near the establishment to which they belong, or who walk about. There is at least one man in New York who has worn a sign coat—a canvas coat in dry weather, a rubber coat in wet, with the same sign painted on each—daily for years. Wearing a sign coat is as much his regular occupation as writing is the occupation of the man who writes this brief article about signs that are carried.

There is another sign carried below the head—the valise sign, which scarcely comes within the purview of this article, for the reason that the carrier of the valise sign is in costume, and signs so carried by men whose curious outfit is relied upon to attract attention form a group by themselves. Still, perhaps mention may be made of the valise sign here. It is painted upon the flat side of an old fashioned alligator mouth valise, whose carrier walks about the street, visiting at intervals the store whence he comes. Pausing there for a moment on the sidewalk, he looks up intently at the sign over the door and then enters in, sallying forth again. Presently he starts on another round.

Another form of portable sign which depends in a measure upon the manner in which it is brought to the attention, though its carriers are not in uniform, is the painted block. The sign is painted upon the sides of a block of wood of about the shape and size of a small dress suit case, and has a handle at the top. Such signs, to the number of four or five, are carried by two boys, who, to begin with, set them down upon the curbstone 15 to 20 feet apart. Then they begin moving the blocks one at a time from rear to front along the curbstone. The rear boy picks up his block and carries it along the sidewalk past the other blocks and puts it down upon the curbstone 20 feet ahead of the first block and then goes back for another. On the way to the rear he meets the other boy going to the front with a block which he will put down in the same manner, and so they keep going, forever picking up the last block and carrying it to the front and setting it down at the head and so working along the street.

Between the signs carried below the head and those carried above it there are some that are carried on or about the head. There is, for instance, the tall hat sign, which the carrier wears, with the sign painted upon it or painted upon something attached to it. Carried at night is the electric hat sign, with light from lamps fed by a storage battery shining through letters perforated in a tall hat. The illumination can be turned on or off at the will of the wearer of the hat as he walks. A day sign carried about the head is in the form of a transparency, the lower part of the frame resting upon the carrier's shoulders.—New York Sun.

A Costly Miter.

Bishop Francis Mostyn, who was last year appointed to the newly created Roman Catholic bishopric of Wales, has recently become the fortunate possessor of a miter which is said to surpass in magnificence and in exquisite workmanship anything of the kind worn in Great Britain for many centuries past.

Of white embroidered silk, richly ornamented with gold, it is studded with 500 precious stones. The miter, which is Gothic in design, bears on its front a dove, symbolic of the Holy Spirit, in gold repousse work, encircled by garnets and a heart formed of a single carbuncle of large size, with jeweled rays. The whole is surmounted by a cross composed of 38 gems. On the back are the figures of the Welsh patron saints, St. David and St. Winifrid, beautifully wrought in the Welsh colors and surmounted by rubies, emeralds and pearls. At the apex appears the national emblem, the Welsh harp, encircled by topazes and aquamarines, which is an exact copy of the ancient "Ariandlws," which tradition declares to have remained in the possession of the Mostyn family from early centuries.

What, one wonders, would the Galilean fishermen have thought of this costly mark of episcopal rank?—Westminster Gazette.

Looking Forward.

"When I am rich," he said haughtily, "I will return and taunt you with the opportunity you have missed."

"When you are rich," she answered calmly, "I trust you will offer to pay for the broken leg of that spindle limbed gilt chair."

And he went forth with a hollow groan.—Cleveland Plain Dealer

Keys are made, to a considerable extent, by machinery, special dies for each variety being employed to cut the wards so as to fit a particular lock. The hollow keys, formerly made altogether by hand, are now in great part manufactured by a machine.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the liver and kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and tonic. Try it. Sold for 50 cents or $1.00 per bottle at R. R. Oh, How Thankful

Pain Was Maddening and Hope Had Been Abandoned—Wonderful Results of Purifying the Blood.

"A very severe pain came in my left knee, which grew worse and worse, and finally a sore broke out above the knee. It discharged a great deal and the pain from my thigh down was maddening. Large, hard, purple spots appeared on my leg. I suffered in this way for years, and gave up all hope of ever being cured. My wife was reading of a case like mine cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and she advised me to try it. I began taking it and when I had used a few bottles I found relief from my suffering. Oh, how thankful I am for this relief! I am stronger than I have ever been in my life. I am in the best of health, have a good appetite and am a new man altogether." J. P. MOORE, Lisbon Falls, Maine.

Elephantine Nurses In Siam.

The women of Siam intrust their children to the care of elephant nurses, and it is said the trust is never betrayed. The elephant, not being susceptible to the charms of the sauntering policeman nor the social claims of its friends and relatives, is consequently able to devote its entire attention to its charge. The babies play about the huge feet of the elephants, who are very careful never to hurt the little creatures. And if danger threatens, the sagacious animal curls the child gently up in its trunk and swings it up and out of harm's way upon its own back.

Safety Elevators.

An improved system has been adopted in respect to the new elevators for the library of congress. They are built with a special view to safety, and in addition to a safety catch are provided with what is termed the air cushion—the latter not a real cushion, inasmuch as it is not soft, nor is it made and put in position, being formed only when the elevator is dropped to the bottom of the shaft, and thus all wear and tear on the cushion is avoided. The principle is very simple. At the bottom of the shaft is a well about 18 feet in depth, the sides of which are so arranged as to come at the top within the sixteenth of an inch of the side of the elevator, this space gradually growing larger until there is a distance of an inch and a half between the elevator and the shaft. When the elevator is dropped from the roof, it pushes before it a quantity of air, and, dropping into the well, the air is compressed and, escaping very slowly, allows the elevator to settle easily.

Queer and Shocking.

Recent advertisements in the daily papers are calculated to make dime museum freaks gasp with envy. The "bearded lady" would be an ordinary mortal beside the curiosity quoted here: "Lost, a dark green leather lady's pocketbook." Think of a dark green leather lady! In another advertisement we learn that "girls are wanted to sew buttons on the second story of the Smith & Jones building," and while we are wondering what the second story is going to do with the buttons after they are "sewed on" we see that Brown & Co. want "a saleslady in corsets and underflannels," and we are so shocked that we never read any more "wants."—Boston Gazette.

THE PHOTOGRAPH.

My own poor holidays were of the scantiest at the time of this narration. I had enjoyed my freedom for ten days of June; but, though the period bade fair to live forever in my memory, I seemed to have been already a twelvemonth back at work upon the evening when I found Dick's letter awaiting me at my lodgings:

MY DEAR MORTIMER—I am in town again at last. Arrived last night. Come round and smoke a pipe—tonight if possible. I've a hundred things to tell you. Meanwhile, if you will believe it, I'm engaged. Yours, DICK.

The news he told me was the pleasantest possible, for I also, to tell the truth, had learned in my ten days' freedom how unenviable are the liberties of the mere bachelor. I remained free for the present, but I nevertheless hoped to follow his example before the year was out.

One can do a good deal in ten days—indeed I had fallen hopelessly in love in less than that number of hours. But I felt it rather too much to ask that Maud should have recognized and learned to reciprocate my feelings in so short a time, and so I had not spoken. All the same, I knew that it would be a crushing disappointment to me if she had not accomplished it. Her home was at Brighton, she once told me, and she well knew my friends, the Meynells.

For Maud—I could find no words to express her. I put my hand into the breast pocket of my coat and drew out a photograph. It was not a very good likeness; the hair was not dressed in the fashion which had become familiar to me, and that fashion, of a surety, was the most charming that ever occurred to the mind of ingenious woman. But still the picture had enough of her to be for me the most beautiful thing in the world, save only her sweet self. I had stolen it. She was stopping with the Luttrells, with whom I spent my holiday at Sandybar, and Madge Luttrell was a great friend of mine. She had detected or foreseen my devotion to Maud, I think, even before it revealed itself to me. At any rate, I knew she would be discreet, and, trusting to her clemency, I had stolen the precious photograph out of her album upon the morning when I left Sandybar.

I had soon finished the meal which stood ready for me and from which I had been kept by Dick's note and by the emotions resulting from its perusal. Then I found my hat and stick and my very largest pipe and set out across London to Dick's rooms. The place was in darkness and untenanted when I entered, but I knew that he would not fail me and struck a match to discover if he had left a note to tell me when he would return. "Back at 8," it read. "Meanwhile, there's baccy and a new Stevenson."

It was now upon the stroke of 7, so I lit the lamp, found Stevenson and prepared to spend an hour pleasantly. The time passed most happily. At last I laid aside the book and filled my pipe. I walked across the room to take a spill from the mantelshelf, and in a moment found myself gazing at the photograph of Maud Cameron—the girl I loved, the girl I hoped to marry.

It was in a frame of elaborately beaten silver, already somewhat tarnished by tobacco smoke, and beyond a doubt was a portrait of Dick's fiancee.

I turned away from the mantel—her face looked forth upon me like a stranger's out of that frame—and took my copy of her photograph from my pocket. I laid it upon the table in the full light of the lamp. It had not all her beauty; her loveliness was half of everchanging expression, and so must needs escape the camera. But still the picture gave the lie to all the overwhelming evidence which had crushed my faith in her. For a moment I was content. He might account himself master of her love; might, if it pleased him, believe that no man disputed with him the kingdom of her heart. For a moment, despite all evidence, I believed that she was still true to the unspoken fact between us, that she could not betray me.

There was a sudden sound of footsteps on the stairs, a hand upon the door, and even as I thrust back her photograph into my pocket the door opened and Dick entered.

"Hope you've not had long to wait," he said. "I had to be out for awhile."

"Not long," I answered. "And now, I suppose, I must congratulate you?"

Dick laughed. "Do you only suppose? I am the luckiest beggar in the world. But, never mind, you will see her some day, and then you will speak differently. You will envy me, madly, for indeed— But we'll wait until you have met her. Only I promise you you may safely venture your congratulations. Here is her photograph, by the bye, a wretchedly bad one, but still not all unlike."

He moved to the mantel and handed me her picture, inclosed in that abominable frame of his. I took it from him, and for a minute and more gazed hard upon her face.

"It is all true," I kept whispering to myself. "She has betrayed me."

Dick watched me in silence, evidently convinced of my admiration. In reality I was wondering whether it would be better to tell him that we had met.

Presently he broke silence. "Well," he said, holding out his hand for the return of her photograph.

"You are lucky," I answered slowly. "She is very beautiful."

"Aye," he said contentedly, "but you don't know how beautiful! That photograph is a libel."

He put it back upon the mantelshelf and selected a pipe. Then he stretched himself in an easy chair.

"You two must know one another—indeed she is already eager for your acquaintance."

I was steeled, I thought, against all that he could tell me, but upon this I well nigh betrayed myself. Had she admitted that her fancy for me—I knew that she did come near loving me—was dead, I could have borne my burden uncomplainingly and might have forgotten. But that she should deny that it had existed—that she had ever known me—that was past toleration.

"They live at Brighton," Dick continued, "so that we are not too far away to visit them. You must come down some day with me. I want you to know her."

There are times when it were unwise to be sincere.

"I shall be delighted," I said even while I reviewed the excuses upon which I should be able to rely in the event of his some day tendering a more definite invitation. Then I turned the conversation into other channels, and in a little while, somewhat to the disgust of my friend, who had much to tell, I left.

About a month had passed when I had a note one day from Mrs. Luttrell:

DEAR MR. MORTIMER—We have taken tickets for the Lyceum matinee on Saturday, and three or four friends are to meet us there. I wonder if you are free that afternoon and would care to meet us and go with us to the theater. Yours very truly,

FRANCES LUTTRELL.

It was a miserable, foggy day, and I half feared they would not come. But though their train was somewhat delayed they presently arrived, and we took a cab along the Strand. Madge looked unusually pretty and greeted me with a disappointing cheerfulness. I had counted on a little sympathy from her, but her aspect was one of rather mischievous enjoyment. It would have been timely enough if she had held in store for me some very delightful surprise. She even referred to a matter which I had hoped for a month past had escaped her observation.

"I did not think that you would descend to theft," she said. "I would have given it to you. And, of course, you have discovered your mistake."

We were entering the theater as she spoke, and there was a momentary press of people, and I affected not to have heard her speech; indeed I was not a little angry. Her clumsiness was obviously intentional, for I was well aware that she in nowise suffered from want of tact.

A moment later we were being shown to our seats.

"Will you take the inside seat?" said Madge, and I moved obediently to the last vacant one, next to the lady whose face was turned from me. I was just taking my seat when she turned and looked up at me. She had the grace to blush, for it was Maud Cameron, but there was no tremor in her voice when she spoke a moment later.

"How do you do?" she said politely, and in the same words I answered her.

Presently she leaned a little nearer and spoke to me in her soft, pretty voice:

"You have nothing to say?" she said. "You may talk, you know."

I turned to her with a look of desperation. Why could not she leave me to myself? "I had forgotten," I said. "I must congratulate you—or Dick, at any rate."

"Oh," she answered smilingly, "you may congratulate me also. Do not fear; it has happened marvelously well."

"Marvelously well!" I echoed.

"Yes," she continued, "and particularly in that you are his special friend. It is so nice for the wife when the husband's friend is nice. But why didn't you tell him you knew the Luttrells—and me?"

I stared at her, incredulous of her cruelty.

"How could I tell him?" I said indignantly. "You had denied acquaintance with me, and, since you had forgotten, do you think I wished to remember?"

I was a trifle startled at the effect of this speech. It should have silenced her. I thought so at least, but it seemed as if I had injured her, and now a greater indignation than my own arose in her.

"It is not true," she said. "What do you mean? I saw him only a fortnight ago, when I returned from Sandybar, and I distinctly remember telling him that day that I had met you there. Mother did suggest that he might bring you down one Saturday; but, of course"—

I interrupted. "You only saw him a fortnight ago? Why, 'tis a full month since he told me you were engaged. And yet you have known him only a fortnight?"

She looked at me with a sort of pitiful amazement.

"He told you he was engaged to me? Why, he's engaged to Mary, my sister. And besides"—

A new life entered into me. The old hope lived again. Yet I was convinced.

"He showed me your photograph," I said.

She looked at me a moment. Slowly the bewilderment faded from her face, and it appeared she was mightily amused.

"Did he tell you my name?" she asked.

"He showed me your likeness and told me you were engaged to him. I don't remember if he told me your name. But there was no need. I do not forget so easily."

Maud chuckled. There is no other word.

"You have seen the photograph before?" she said.

"I stole it out of Madge Luttrell's album the day I was to leave Sandybar. I thought"—

"Surely it was a little curious to steal the photograph of a lady you had never met, for it is to Mary, my sister, that Mr. Ferguson is engaged, and it was her photograph you took from Madge's album. She is considered rather like me."

I was stunned with the sudden joy and with the sense of my great stupidity. I knew that her eyes were upon me, and I would have given worlds to be with her for a moment only, away from this great crowd of people.

"I burned it," I said, "a month ago. You will give me one of your own?"

She answered nothing, and at that moment the curtain rose. But I was well content.—Exchange.

Wine For Science Only.

In England there is a cellar full of wines of the choicest vintages, which bid fair to spoil for temperance's sake. Years ago, by the will of Sir Walter Trevelyan of Northumberland, England, that knight's famous wine cellar became the property of Sir Benjamin Richardson, the head of the Temperance hospital in London. But the will enjoined Sir Benjamin from using the wine for other than "scientific purposes." Convinced that none of the wine in all the 60 dozen famous vintages in the cellar could be used for the purpose specified, Sir Benjamin did not draw the cork of a single bottle.

At his death his widow became the possessor of the valuable cellar, but she, too, is forbidden to use it except in the interest of science. She cannot, under the will, sell the now famous wines, even to donate the proceeds to the cause of temperance. To store the many bottles year after year is expensive, and yet there seems to be but one other course—to destroy.—New York World.

Ancient Breton Custom.

In Brittany a quaint and very beautiful custom of Christmas giving is still preserved from very ancient times. When the country folk go to the midnight mass, the opening mass of Christmas day, they all carry lanterns to light them on their way. Upon their arrival at the church they give their lanterns over to the poor old women of the parish, who are gathered in a crowd outside the church awaiting them.

The worshipers enter the sacred building and then attend to the devotions, which the church teaches should be of especial fervor at this holy season. But when the mass is ended and they are dismissed with the benediction, they come forth to find the patient old women awaiting them outside the church bearing the lanterns. The lanterns are given back to their owners, and as each takes his own he exchanges for it a piece of money. The value of the piece varies, but the alms is always considerable, and it stands as an exponent of that charity which the church teaches to its children.—New York Herald.

Dean Stanley and His Shirt Button.

Mr. Lang, in The Illustrated London News, gives an anecdote of Dean Stanley's amiable simplicity. The dean was dining out and was very late. When he came, his collar was unfastened, and the ends vibrated like little white wings about the head of a cherub. People could not but look at him with curiosity during dinner, and at length, with due precautions, his hostess ventured to ask him if he knew that his collar had broken adrift. "Oh, yes!" said the dean. "Do you mind?" "Not at all," said the lady. "Then I don't mind either," answered the dean. "The button dropped off while I was dressing." And he continued his conversation. "It was not," says Mr. Lang, "absence of mind," but unrivaled presence of mind, that Stanley displayed on this occasion. Any other human being would have been at the point of changing his shirt.

BERING SEA CONFERENCE.

The Outlook Favorable to a Satisfactory Adjustment of This and Other Border Controversies.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, November 16.—The Bering sea meeting, in which representatives of Great Britain, Canada and the United States have participated, came to a close to-night, the seal experts making unanimous report concerning the condition of the seal herds, and the diplomatic representatives of the respective governments reaching an understanding by which they hope at a later day to effect final adjustment not only of the Bering sea question, but of other pending border controversies. For the present, however, no final action was taken as to the suspension of pelagic sealing. The Canadians urged that the other questions be embraced in any plan of settlement, and suggested an international commission to accomplish this end. This proposition was fully discussed and an agreement reached that the Canadian officials would put their views in writing after reaching Ottawa and submit them to the authorities here. All parties concerned say that the outlook is favorable to a satisfactory adjustment.

BUILDING AND LOAN.

The International League of Associations in Annual Convention.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 16.—The third annual convention of the International League of Building and Loan Associations began this morning at the Windsor Hotel. The league includes nearly every building and loan association in the United States and in Canada. There were between fifty and sixty delegates at the convention, President John Hanson, of the New South Building and Loan Association, of New Orleans, called the meeting to order. In a short address he called attention to the growth of building and loan associations all over the country and the necessity of uniform laws regarding the associations. The secretary's report was partly historical and partly statistical and dealt with the increase in the numbers of the associations, their beneficial effects and their prosperity.

Bird M. Robinson, secretary of the league, read his annual report. Its principal feature was a series of comparisons of building and loan associations with national banks, showing in the main that the loan associations were safer institutions.

STEAMSHIP BELGENLAND

Rescued the Crews of Two Wrecked Schooners on Her Voyage From Liverpool.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PHILADELPHIA, November 16.—The closing portion of the voyage of the steamship Belgenland, which arrived to-day from Liverpool, was eventful and interesting to those on board, and to the watchful eye of the lookout can be credited the saving of a number of lives. On Sunday morning the water-logged and sail-less schooner Willie E Maxwell was sighted, and she was taken in tow, to the great relief of her crew of ten men, the vessel having become helpless. On Monday morning a small boat was sighted drifting helplessly with five men aboard. When the men were taken on board the steamship it was found that they were the crew of the abandoned schooner Theo. Dean. Captain James F. Hodgon, of the Dean, had been washed from the small boat and lost. Captain Hodgon resided at Somerville, Mass., and leaves a widow, two daughters and a son.

EASTERN FIELD TRIALS.

Prize Winning Dogs in the Derby Course at Newton, N. C.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., November 16.—A special to the Observer from Newton, N. C., says:

The weather to day continues unfavorable to good work in the Eastern Field Trials.

The Derby course was concluded this morning with the following results: Zeb, owned and handled by Victor Humphreys, Lexington, N. C., won first prize of $300; Pearl R., handled by D. E. Rose, second, of $200; and Way Not, owned by P. Loriliard, Jr., and handled by C. Tucker, won third prize of $100.

Zeb, the winner of first place, was sold yesterday after running two series, to S. F. R. Hitchcock, of New York, for $900. In making the trade it was agreed that the seller was to receive any purse the dog might win, consequently this dog in two days brought to Mr. Humphreys the round sum of $500.

Frost and Freezing Temperature Predicted For the Yellow Fever Districts of the South.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A special bulletin from the Weather Bureau says: The most decided cold wave of the season is indicated for Wednesday morning throughout the yellow fever districts of the South.

Freezing weather will probably occur throughout the Northern and central portions of the Gulf States and in the Ohio valley Wednesday morning with frosts generally throughout the Southern States Wednesday or Wednesday night.

The change in temperature will be most marked in the Ohio valley, where it is now about sixty degrees. The warm weather on the Atlantic coast to-day will probably be followed by a decided fall in temperature and two or three days of cold weather for the season.

GULDENSUPPE'S MURDER.

Thorn's Trial Will be Resumed Monday Next—A Special Venire of Jurors Summoned.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 16.—A saw which may be the implement with which Wm. Guldensuppe's corpse was dismembered in the cottage at Woodside, L. I., where he was murdered in June last, was brought to District Attorney Young, at Long Island City to-day. It is said to have been found buried to the handle in the meadow lying between Flushing and College Point, just as Mrs. Nack is said to have told the officers on Sunday last that it was placed by Martin Thorn. The saw will be produced when Thorn's trial is resumed on Monday next. In anticipation of this latter event a special venire for two hundred jurors will be issued to-morrow.

AUSTRIA'S DEMANDS.

TURKEY REFUSES TO DISMISS THE OFFENDING OFFICIALS.

If Compliance is Not Made by Noon To-day Austrian Warships Will Bombard Mersina and the Austrian Ambassador Will Leave Constantinople.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, November 17.—It now appears that the statement made yesterday in a special dispatch from Vienna that the Turkish Government, in reply to the demands of Baron de Calice, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, that the Porte had agreed to salute the Austrian flag after dismissing the Vali of Adana and the Mutessarif of Mersina, for indignities offered to the Austrian Brazzafolli, was premature. The Porte has not yielded to the Austrian demands.

Dispatches from Vienna announce that up to midnight Tuesday no intimation had been received of the intention of the Turkish Government to dismiss the offending officials, or to salute the flag. If, however, the Austrian demands are not complied with by noon to-morrow (Thursday) Baron de Calice will leave Constantinople and the Austrian warships will bombard Mersina.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times says: "It is now expected that the Sultan will hold out until the last moment, and then yield, which may appear to him a clever stroke of diplomacy and something for the Turkish official press to boast of—a semi-victory over the Christian powers. Eventually, however, it is as likely as not to prove an unmitigated blunder, the consequences of which will become manifest in the course of time

"Abdul Hamid is evidently just now in a frame of mind calculated to inspire serious concern. His easy victory over the Greeks, together with the indulgence he was accustomed to expect from Germany until lately, completely turned his head."

R. R. TRAFFIC ASSOCIATION.

Board of Control Discuss Passenger and Freight Rates East and West.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 16.—The board of control of the Joint Traffic Association was in session here to day. Among the subjects discussed was that of passenger and freight rates, east and west bound, which have been in a chaotic condition for some time. Other subjects considered were the relations of the Grand Trunk and Canadian & Pacific railroads to the Joint Traffic Association, and the matter of excess fares charged on fast trains between the seaboard and Mississippi valley cities.

It was decided to continue the "homeseekers and settlers" rates from Northwestern points to the Southeast during the balance of the Winter. The railroads of this district have been making strenuous efforts to secure a better class of settlers and have established industrial offices throughout the entire country.

Rates were also agreed upon for the movement of the military to New Orleans on account of the Mardi Gras festivities. The rates for the general public will be fixed at the next meeting

A rate of one fare for the round trip was agreed upon to Chattanooga, Tennessee, on account of the meeting of the department of superintendents of the National Education Association.

The rate committee was waited upon by a delegation from the Travellers' Protective Association who urged that the commercial travellers be permitted the privilege of an interchange of mileage tickets. The committee refused to state what action, if any had been taken. Many of the members left for their homes to-night.

HAYTI AND GERMANY.

The German Government Urged to Take Prompt Measures for Reparation.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, November 17.—The Berlin correspondent of the Times says: Not only the Radical but the Clerical journals are of opinion that the conflict with the Republic of Hayti and the attack on the missionaries in China will be used to influence German public feeling in favor of extensive naval plans.

Various journals, meanwhile, continue to urge the Government to take prompt measures for reparation in Hayti. The Neueste Nacherrichten considers the action of Hayti not only an offence to the dignity of Germany, but an insult to Emperor William.

The insinuation in the documents published in the Haytian newspaper Monsiteur that Germany has been acting as if she contemplated a protectorate of Hayti is described as a ruse to excite other powers, particularly the United States. It is said in official quarters that the government is considering sending an imperial commissioner to Port au Prince with the German warships.

YELLOW FEVER RECORD.

Eleven New Cases and Two Deaths at New Orleans—Weather Colder—Four New Cases at Mobile.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

MOBILE, ALA., November 16.—Four new cases of fever were reported to-day. There were no deaths.

Four new cases are reported from Whistler.

NEW ORLEANS, November 16.—There were eleven new cases and two deaths to-day from yellow fever. The deaths were Michael Ross and Mrs. Ben L. Bear. The weather turned cold this evening, a strong wind blowing. Frost is promised for the next day or two and the outlook is very bright. Among the new cases are Rev. D. R. Whitinghill, pastor of the Coliseum Baptist church, and R. E. Craig, president of the water works company. Nearly a dozen ministers have been afflicted since the fever started, but Dr. D. L Percy was the only one whose case resulted fatally. All the others are long convalescent.

CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Locked in the House While Their Parents Went to Church.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

EUFAULA, ALA., November 16.—Three half grown children lost their lives in the burning of an old frame house a mile from White Oak, Ala., Sunday night. Their parents, Louis Brown and wife, went to church, leaving their children, aged 12, 8 and 6 years, locked in the house, supposedly for their own safety, but the old building caught fire soon after the parents left, and when they returned they found it a heap of ashes. In the centre of the mass of debris the bones of the children were found in a heap, showing that they had huddled together in their fear and agony.

GOV. RUSSELL INDIGNANT.

Denounces Statement That Judge Robinson Had Been Using Free Passes—The Case of John Evans—Supreme Court Decisions.

[Special Star Correspondence.]

RALEIGH, N. C., November 16.

The Governor was very indignant today when he read the published statement that Judge Robinson had been using free passes. He said: "It is a lie, out and out, and the authors of it are liars. It is a put up job and was put up by scoundrels." Judge Robinson stated while here that he had not accepted a pass from any railroad since he went on the bench. The Governor says that Judge Robinson has not accepted a free pass since he was Receiver of the Bank in Wilmington. It is reported that two railroads have been indicted by the grand jury of Wayne for violating the free pass law and that Judge Robinson has been cited as a witness.

Mr. Claudius Dockery arrived here today from Rockingham. A petition will be gotten up at once calling on the Governor to exercise executive clemency in behalf of John Evans.

Mr. Henry Martin, of Washington, D. C., left for Wilmington to-day to attend the Settle Potter nuptials.

The Penitentiary board meets to-morrow. Chairman Dockery says a careful estimate of the indebtedness and resources, actual and those to be derived this year have been made. He claims that the penitentiary will be more than self-supporting, and that large sums will be deposited in the Treasury. The total indebtedness is estimated to be $44,-682.28 Collectable bills $8,997.67. The cotton crop to be gathered is estimated at 2,116 bales; corn, 22,200 barrels.

Attorney General Walser will intercede before the Governor to morrow in behalf of John Evans, the Rockingham rapist. Cyrus Watson says if he were Governor he would pardon Evans if he had to leave the State. Says he was convicted without evidence.

THE RIGHT OF REMOVAL

If a Postmaster Gives No Reason for Discharging an Assistant There is No Remedy.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, November 16.—The appeal of Major Cooper, of Atlanta, Ga., from his removal as assistant postmaster in favor of Major Smythe, has reached here. The Civil Service Commission, however, can see no relief for the action, for an amendment to the civil service rules made by President McKinley on July 27th last, excepts one assistant postmaster, or chief assistant to the postmaster, of whatever designation, at each postoffice, from the civil service requirements for examination or registration before the commission. Chairman Proctor, of the commission, who returned to-night from New York, stated that under this rule there was no action the commission could take in the matter, and the discretion thus given the postmaster was only restricted by forbidding removals for political purposes. If the postmaster gives no reason for the removal there is no remedy for the deposal.

A TERRIBLE FIGHT.

One Man Dead and the Other Combatant in Jail Charged With Murder.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

LEXINGTON, KY., Nov. 16.—Merritt Martin, a saloon keeper and agent for the Chattanooga Brewing Company, and J. J. Ryan, also a saloon keeper, had a terrible fight to night in the latter's place of business on Main street, as the result of which Ryan is dead and Martin is locked up, charged with murder. The men became angered over an account and began fighting with their fists. Bystanders interfered and separated them. While Martin was being held away from Ryan, the latter hit him a blow in the face, whereupon Martin drew his pistol and began shooting. The friends were panic-stricken and fled, leaving the fighters together. Martin's third shot struck Ryan in the left arm and a fourth entered the abdomen. Martin was arrested. Ryan died while being carried to the hospital. He was a single man, aged about 35.

There is little encouragement in the New York dry goods market, prices in all lines of cotton goods still tending toward a lack of stability and buyers being anxious to take advantage of such irregularites.

Levi L. Potter, colored, was instantly killed last night in Philadelphia by a shock from an electric light wire. Potter was standing on an iron grating in front of a store. He carried over his shoulder an umbrella with an iron rod, one end of which he held in his hand. The other end touched the wire where it was exposed and Potter fell over dead.

FASCINATING CALVE.

The Greatest Singer of the Day Acknowledges Her Indebtedness to Paine's Celery Compound.

Emma Calve has attained a success unprecedented in the annals of lyric art. To repeat the story of her triumph is needless. Her superb voice, her fascinating half-oriental dances, her caressing gestures, her black eyes, irrestible mirth—these, and the indescribable something more, make up the dazzling personation by which the artist has made her name famous in every part of the world.

Her marvelous artist temperament has made her a great actress, but this brings its own price, and as great hearts know great griefs, great nervous temperaments must know great nervous strain, consequently, there are periods of nervous prostration and unfulfilled engagements when impatient audiences are apt to forget these extenuating circumstances.

Calve's absolute reliance on Paine's celery compound at all such times of low nervous energy appears in the following letter:

Boston, Mass., March, 1897.

I am convinced that Paine's celery compound is the greatest nerve strengthener that can be obtained. I can vouch for its wonderful health-giving power.

EMMA CALVE.

Every great change for the worse in health is in most cases at once betrayed by a loss of weight and a pinched thinning of the face. On the other hand, a gain in weight, up to a certain point, goes hand in hand with an improvement in all other essentials of health, and notably an improvement in the color and amount of the blood.

One of the surest tests of the health-making capabilities of Paine's celery compound is the rapid increase in weight and the increased ruddiness of the blood that invariably follows its use. It clears the skin, makes the excretory, purifying functions, performed by the bowels, kidneys and the skin, regular and thorough.

The improvement in looks from taking this great restorative is not a mere matter of idle vanity, but the sign of healthier processes all over the body. Many a parent, wife and husband, have watched with growing surprise and joy some listless, white bodied, feeble relative gaining, under the help of Paine's celery compound, flesh, color and wholesomeness of mind and body.

Not only is there a decided gain in the general health from the use of Paine's celery compound, but such disorders as sick headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney disease and nervous debility invariably yield to the vigorous building up of the health that this great remedy never fails to bring about.

Increased appetite, ready capacity to digest food and the final cure of stomach disorders, bowel difficulties and nervous derangement follow the use of Paine's celery compound.

As a prudent man insures his house against a contingency of fire, however remote, so persons feeling "run down" and tired should take precautions against serious breaking down in health by building up securely the strength and vigor of the entire system by means of Paine's celery compound.

CATTLE QUARANTINE LIFTED.

Many Thousand Head Arriving in Kansas From Texas and Other States

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

TOPEKA, November 16.—The quarantine in Kansas on cattle from the South was lifted to-day and, according to Taylor Riddle, chairman of the State Live Stock Committee, the biggest influx of cattle for years was begun. "There are herds of feeders right now," he said, "on the southern border ready to come in before dark to night, and there are cattle in Mississippi ready for shipment to Kansas. I consider it a conservative estimate to say that 30 000 Texas cattle and 50 000 more Arkansas, Mississippi and Western Tennessee, will be shipped into Kansas before December 1st.
